

What is Shift and Share?

Shift & Share replaces long large-group presentations with several concise presentations made simultaneously to multiple small groups.

How does the Shift and Share session work?

A few individuals set up “stations” where they share in under 5 min the essence of their work/project, challenges they are trying to solve, and lessons learned that may be of value to others. Participants move to another station after the presentation and brief question and feedback period. As small groups move from one station to another, their size makes it easy for people to connect with the presenters. They can quickly learn from the lessons shared by the presenters, and the informal small-group setting also encourages the participants to ask questions and share their ideas/suggestions on the challenges. Presenters learn from the repetition, and groups can easily spot opportunities for creative solutions and shared interests.

How does the Shift and Share flow?

- Step 1: Each table have 2 country station hosts per table.
- Step 2: 25 min per round (6 min each for presenting your story then 12 min for Q&A, thoughts)
- Step 3: We do 3 rounds on Day 1 (90 min total including 15 min summary which will cover 6 countries) and do another 4 rounds on Day 2 (110 min total including 10 min summary which will cover the remaining 8 countries)

How to prepare for a Shift and Share session?

Each delegation prepares a brief presentation/informal storytelling session (to be delivered in under 5 minutes without power-point slides) to address the following questions:

- What are the key challenges the country/city is trying to solve?
- What are the specific variables (job, income per capita, productivity, implementation etc.) the country/city are trying to tackle?
- What will change once the challenge is addressed?
- It is important to note that this is your opportunity to share with your peers the lessons you have learned in the process of solving challenges so that others can learn from your experience. Please also make a point to share at least one thing that is working well or holds promise in your country in this sector.

Additional session details

Presenters are welcome to use any handouts, visuals to support their presentation or show brief video clips or project websites to participants. The facilitator for this session will meet with the presenters ahead of the session to answer any questions on the presentation and process.
