1. Circumstances Surrounding Tourism
The population is projected to decline continuously, reaching as low as 100 million by the year 2047. The birthrate is declining and the population is aging at a rapid rate and it is projected that roughly 40 percent of the total population will be 65 or older by the year 2060. Due to such trends, the productive age population in 2060 is projected to drop to nearly half of the current figure by the year 2060.
Population of permanent settlers = 126.79 million
Annual consumption per capita = 1.25 million yen

FY2018–FY2020 Overall Goal of Travel-to-Japan Promotions

In order to achieve various goals in 2020, such as 40 million visitor arrivals to Japan and 8 trillion in travel spending by visitor arrivals to Japan, it is necessary to attract people from markets throughout the world that are expected to see growth in travel to Japan, including not only Asia, where 80% of visitor arrivals to Japan come from now, but also Europe, U.S., and Australia, where there are an insufficient number of visitor arrivals from compared to the size of the foreign travel market.

Change promotion plan to a three-year plan starting in FY2018 in order to make the most of the growing focus on Japan because of the Tokyo Olympics and Paralympics.

During the three-year period (FY2018–2020), the goals will be appropriately revised taking into consideration various factors including revisions to strategies developed by outside consultants and results of market surveys.

Main points of the 3-year travel-to-Japan promotion goals

- Taking into consideration differences between the Asian market, where there is strong awareness of traveling to Japan, and those in Europe, U.S., and Australia, where there is little awareness, set issues and responses by target for each of 20 priority markets based on individual characteristics of the market and improve strategic aspects of the promotion.
  - For Asia, further capture demand by repeat visitors, who are growing in number, and strengthen response to more diverse needs of individual travelers and people who have not yet visited Japan.
  - In order to develop new demand, particularly in Europe, U.S., and Australia, move forward with promotions that effectively increase interest in and desire to travel to Japan through the use of digital marketing technology that targets people who frequently travel for long periods overseas but are not aware of Japan as a travel destination Japan (group uninterested in travel to Japan) (fully implement a global visit Japan campaign).
  - For Europe, U.S., and Australia, utilize outside consultants, analyze the results of market research, etc. and revise items such as target and content of appeals. Especially, conduct more advanced promotions by being sure to attract people who are not interested in visiting Japan.

- Make the most of digital marketing and strive to understand market trends and develop more advanced promotions through big data analysis.

- Strengthen promotions to attract wealthy visitors and long-stay visitors in order to increase travel spending by visitor arrivals to Japan.

- Work to promote efforts to attract new routes for airlines and cruise ships, etc.

- Move forward with efforts to increase the appeal of local areas by communicating the diverse appeal through partnerships with local governments and other entities, etc.

- Create demand for travel to Japan all year round through measures that target slow periods, etc.

Revision of Licensed Guide Interpreters Act in Response to Rapid Increase of Inbound Tourists Visiting Japan

- Drastic revision of licensed guide interpreters system including discontinuation of monopoly system in response to shortage of licensed guide interpreters and diversification of guide needs <partial revision of Licensed Guide Interpreters Act>

<Current situation & challenge>
1. As the number of foreigners visiting Japan is increasing rapidly, it is necessary for us to let them visit country and regional areas more.
2. Current licensed guide interpreters are mostly in large cities and, in terms of language, largely in English.
3. As the interest and taste of travelers are widely different, needs for guide interpreters are diversified. (Example: I would like to know more about traditional culture, I would like to experience kimono wearing, etc)
4. The number of regionally recognized special guide interpreters has increased in designated district etc. (As of June 2016, 1,376 in 25 districts)

<Discontinuation of monopoly system by Licensed Guide Interpreters & response to diversification of needs>
1. Discontinue business monopoly system while maintaining title-monopoly system.
2. Recognize special case of local guide nationwide as a local guide interpreter.
4. National Licensed Guide Interpreters are now obliged to take periodical training course.

[Improvement on the quality of non-licensed guide]
- Those without license are encouraged to take those training courses that are taken by the licensed guide interpreters

[Prevention of malicious guide interpreters]
- Give guidance to travel agents and land operators, by way of guidelines etc, to the effect that they should employ licensed guide interpreters as a matter of priority
- Establish a database for licensed guide interpreters to provide an environment where guides of high quality are firstly chosen by also encouraging non-licensed guides to join.
- In relation to those foreign travel agents who make malicious arrangement, we provide information to the tourism authority of respective country and ask them to regulate & give guidance in accordance with law and regulations of their country.
